PRE-LESSON WARM-UP · DO THIS BEFORE YOUR COMPUTER LESSON

Pre-Lesson Warm-Up: What Do I Already Know?

Write what you know right now. Guesses are fine; this is your starting point.

1. Review (Unit 5): The Double V campaign of 1942 asked for two victories. What were they, and which one was still unfinished when World War II ended?

2. What do you already know about the civil rights movement? Write two facts or guesses.

3. Prediction: A boycott means refusing to buy or use something. How could staying off city buses change a city's unfair law?

4. Why might a child or a teenager be able to change history? Explain your thinking.

5. Write one question you have about the civil rights movement.

POST-LESSON CHALLENGE · DO THIS AFTER YOUR COMPUTER LESSON

Post-Lesson Activity: Courage That Changed the Law

Use evidence from today's lesson. Write in complete sentences.

1. Put in order with years: Voting Rights Act; Mendez v. Westminster; Montgomery bus boycott begins; Brown v. Board of Education; Little Rock Nine enter Central High.

2. Find the mistake. "Rosa Parks was the first person arrested for refusing to give up her seat on a Montgomery bus." Rewrite the sentence so it is true.

3. Compare two sources. The Supreme Court (1954) said separate schools are "inherently unequal." Eisenhower (1957) said "Mob rule cannot be allowed to override the decisions of our courts." How are they connected?

4. Write a paragraph. Choose Sylvia Mendez, Claudette Colvin, Ruby Bridges, Harry T. Moore or John Lewis. In 3 or 4 sentences, tell the risk this person took and what changed. Check capitals, commas and end punctuation.

★ Challenge: Two steps: Harry T. Moore started a branch of the NAACP in 1934. The Civil Rights Act came 30 years later. What year was that, and what is one thing it outlawed?

Looking Ahead: Next week: more voices for equal rights, including the Delano grape strike, Indigenous self-determination, Title IX and the 1977 Section 504 sit-in.
