PRE-LESSON WARM-UP · DO THIS BEFORE YOUR COMPUTER LESSON

What Do I Already Know?

Write what you know right now. Guesses are fine; this is your starting point.

1. What do you already know about the U.S. Constitution? Write two things.

2. Name any part of the U.S. government you have heard of (for example, the president). What do you think it does?

3. Prediction: If you were writing rules for a brand-new country, how would you stop one leader from getting too much power? Write or draw your idea.

4. Guess: In 1789, who do you think was allowed to vote?

5. Write one question you have about how the government works.

POST-LESSON CHALLENGE · DO THIS AFTER YOUR COMPUTER LESSON

What Did I Learn?

Use evidence from today's lesson. Write in complete sentences.

1. Name the three branches of government and the main job of each.

2. Give one example of checks and balances. Which branch checks which?

3. Explain the Three-Fifths Clause in your own words. Who gained power from it, and who paid the cost?

4. Using Banneker's letter as evidence, explain the contradiction he pointed out to Jefferson.

★ Challenge: Pick one group that could not vote in 1789. Write a short letter, like Banneker's, to the leaders of 1789 explaining why that group deserves a voice.

Looking Ahead: Next week is the Unit 2 Checkpoint, where you show what you learned in Weeks 6 to 9. Bring this question: which person from this unit pushed the country closest to its promise of equality, and what is your evidence?
